A World Apart

From the farthest north to the farthest south, discover two capital cities that are at opposite ends of the Earth.

Reykjavik, Iceland

If you want to be on top of the world, why not take a trip to Reykjavik? It's the most northern capital city in the world.

Reykjavik is located on the west coast of Iceland and around 123,000 people live there. Reykjavik is a beautiful city full of colourful buildings. The city hasn't got many tall buildings or skyscrapers and the weather can get very cold there. Getting around the city is quite easy as there are lots of buses and taxis. There is plenty to see and do in Reykjavik. For example, visiting one of the city's many museums, taking a boat trip and going whale watching, or relaxing in one of Iceland's hot mineral pools. If the weather conditions are right, you can also travel out of the city centre to see the amazing Northern Lights fill the night sky with green, blue and red light.

Reykjavik is a unique city with a lot to offer. If you love experiencing new things, Reykjavik is definitely for you.

Wellington, New Zealand

For those considering exploring somewhere new, why not go to the world's most southern capital city – Wellington? Wellington is on the south coast of North Island, New Zealand and around 393,000 people live there.

The city has got golden sandy beaches and the weather can be very windy. It's easy to get around by taking a train, a bus, a taxi or a cable car. You can also travel to New Zealand's South Island from Wellington by ferry or plane.

While in Wellington, there are lots of things to see and do. For example, you can visit museums, try lots of local dishes and go to the Mount Victoria Lookout to take photographs of the city and enjoy the scenery.

Wellington is a fascinating and lively city with something to offer to all types of visitors. So, don't miss out on the trip of a lifetime. Book your trip to Wellington today.
